P.O. to stay put?

• Public pressure has apparently forced the U.S. Postal Service to abandon plans to move Bethel's post office to Bethel Station

By MICHAEL DANIELS

It appears there will be no change of address for the Bethel Post Office.

There has been no formal announcement on the fate of the local facility, but both Bob Chadbourne, chairman of the Bethel Board of Selectmen, and Heine Merrill, of Bethel Station, say they were called Friday by U.S. Postal Service real estate specialist Terry Brooks and informed the post office will stay in its present location.

According to Chadbourne, Brooks said the Postal Service was now considering relocating a rural route carrier from Bethel to Newry, in order to reduce the space requirements here -- thus making it more feasible to locate a new facility at the present site.

Merrill said Brooks told him public pressure forced the Postal Service to change its plans to locate the new facility in Bethel Station.

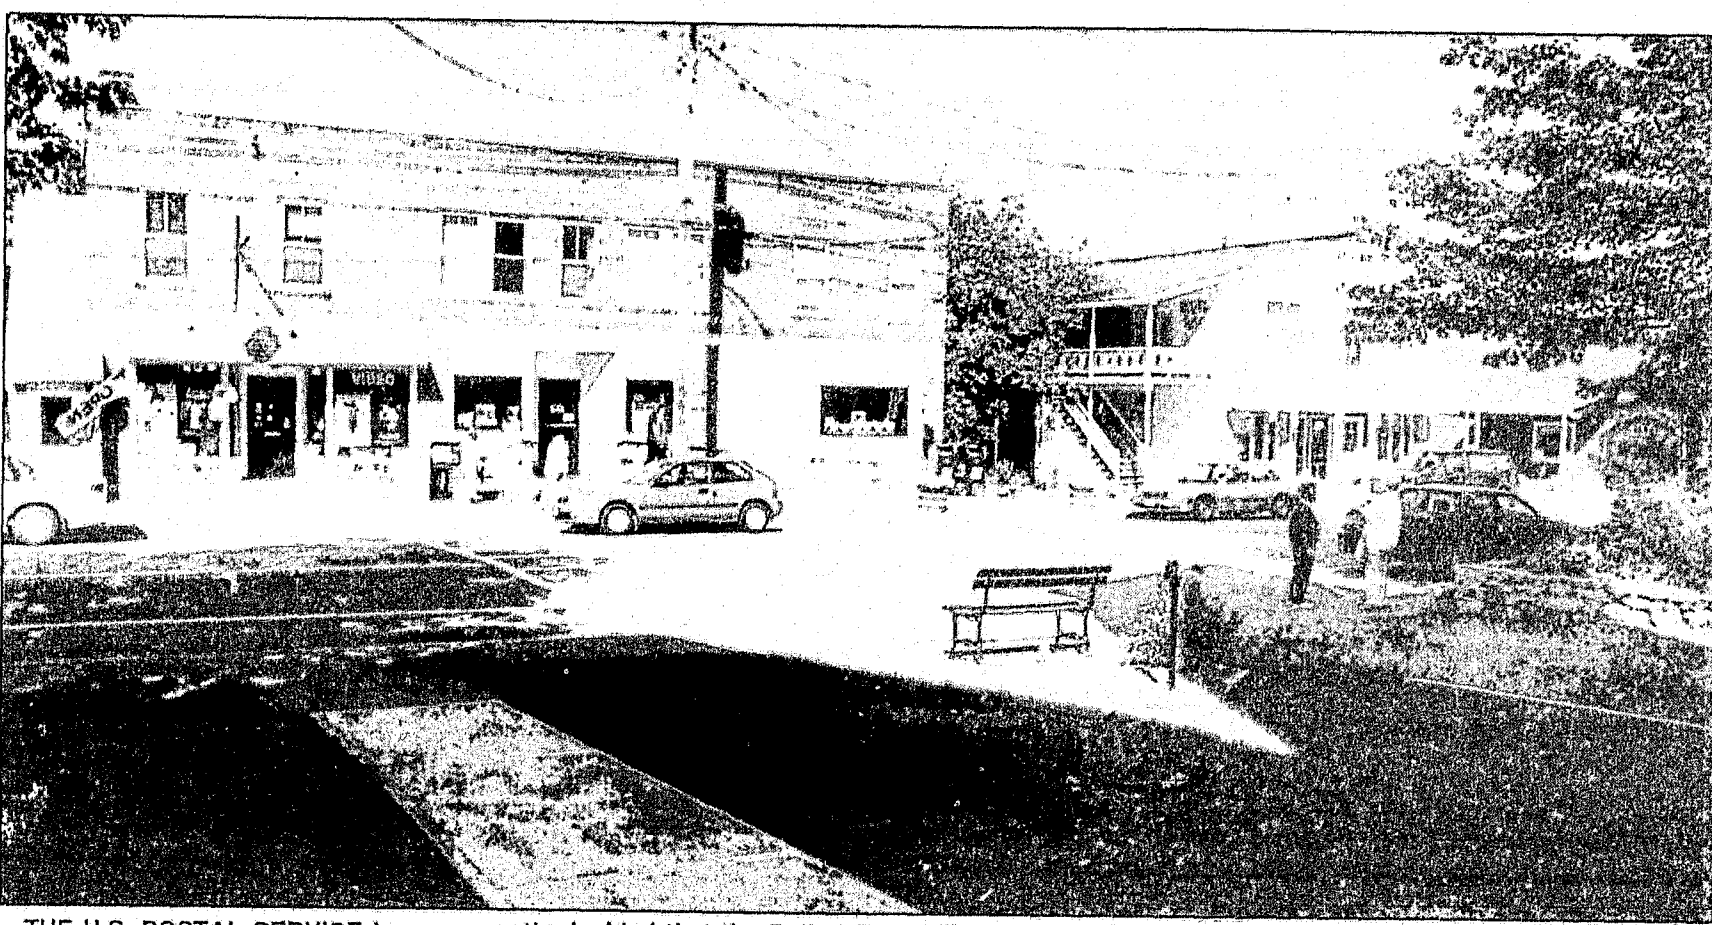

Brooks said he couldn't see the light at the end of the tunnel for doing business with Bethel Station. The negatives overrode the positives," Merrill said.

(As of presstime Tuesday there had been no formal confirmation of the decision. Phone calls to Brooks were not returned. A Postal Service official in Windsor, Conn., who described herself as Brooks' superior, said she did not know of any decision; neither, said Bethel Postmaster Norman Milliard, did his superior. And Carl Glidden, owner of the Main Street site, was on vacation and could not be reached for comment.)

If it was in fact the public hue and cry that led to the decision, then it marks only the second time in Maine where community pressure prevented the relocation of a post office.

In an article in the Sept. 5 Maine Times, Brooks is quoted as saying only Camden had been able to maintain its post office in town, following a Postal Service decision to relocate it.

In the case of the Camden Post Office, no reason was ever given for the decision to leave it where it was, according to the Maine Times' report.

Sunday River wants to light its pipe

By ALISON ALOISIO

Sunday River Ski Resort is proposing to light its snowboarding halfpipe, and put up an entertainment arcade nearby.

The plan was presented to the Newry Planning Board last week.

"It was motivated by our guests," Bob Harkins, vice president for skier services, told the board. "There had been criticism that there was not enough to do at night, especially for kids."

The 1,000-foot length of the snowboarding halfpipe, located near the resort's White Cap Lodge, would be illuminated from 5 to 10 p.m. seven nights a week from mid-December through Easter. Five lights would be required.

The elevation of the lights would be comparable to those of the Summit Hotel, and would be lower than the parking lot lights near South Ridge Lodge.

Acting Planning Board chairman David Walker asked if members believed a public hearing should be held regarding the proposal.

"I doubt the general public will notice the difference (from the lights)," said board member Norm Davis. None of the other board members spoke in favor of a hearing.

Walker noted anyone interested in the issue can attend the next board meeting, scheduled for Oct. 2. Meanwhile, notification letters will be sent to abutters.

The proposal also includes plans to build a 32-by-60-foot arcade housing video games, a pool table and vending machines, according to Sunday River engineer Joe Aloisio.

"We want to focus night entertainment in the White Cap area," he said. The skating rink currently located at the lodge will also be improved, Aloisio said.

Harkins said night sliding might be considered at some point, if the terrain allows it. He also said Sunday River would like to make the

SAD44 School Board taps interim superintendent

• Contract runs through Dec. 31

By ALISON ALOISIO

An educator from Arizona has been hired as SAD44 interim superintendent, replacing Ron Jenkins, who departs Oct. 1.

Dr. Kent Webster's appointment was approved for three months, beginning Oct. 1.

There was no public discussion by the board prior to the vote. Only Margaret Hand, a Woodstock director and Superintendent Search Committee member, opposed Webster's hiring. She gave no reason for her vote.

Director David Langlois of Newry, also a committee member, said only that Webster currently lives in Arizona, but had been "local from years back."

Webster will be paid $250 per day, plus travel expenses. If the board wishes him to stay longer than three months, the terms would be up for renegotiation.

The board also said farewell to Supt. Ron Jenkins, who leaves Oct. 1 for a new position in Calais.

Hand said she was "very sorry to see him go. He's a real class act. He didn't deserve what we put him through."

Jenkins' evaluation was the subject of controversy in the latter part of his three-year tenure.

Bethel director John Brown said Jenkins "told us what we needed to hear, not what we wanted to hear."

For his part, Jenkins said he had always tried to act in the best interest of district students. "I have no regrets or apologies for how I served," he said.

MIA results "respectable"

Mt. Abram night-skiing plan well received

By MICHAEL DANIELS

There were few objections raised Monday to Mt. Abram's plan to light its trails and offer night skiing. Most of the dozen or so Greenwood residents who turned out for a public hearing on the plan expressed support for it.

Ski Mt. Abram owner Rick Hoddinott said the skiway hoped to illuminate 10 trails, "and that's stretching it a bit, as most trail counts do," he said.

In response to a question from

Andy Dewing, Hoddinott said that if the project were economically successful, the skiway would like to light two additional trails.

The plan calls for 80 light poles, each with one or two fixtures. The fixtures would be aimed at the snow surface, providing an average illumination of .5 foot candles (by comparison, night football fields are illuminated to the level of 20 to 50 foot candles, Hoddinott said.)

According to Hoddinott, a lighting engineer checked nearly all the houses on town roads that had direct views of the mountain and none would be negatively affected by directed or reflected light, by sky glow or by light trespass.

The Greenwood Planning Board had received three letters regarding the project.

S. Patrick Dutton wrote to express concern about the parking lot becoming a hangout for youths, and about the increased traffic on the Howe Hill Road.

But the other two letters supported the proposal. Susan Buckley thought the local economy needed such a boost: "The town of Greenwood can only benefit from this new project," she wrote.

The third letter, from the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, noted the increased income potential for nearby businesses.

Those in the audience also appeared to support the proposal. Skiway neighbor Paula Gillies,

High-stakes bingo hall staked out

The on-again, off-again plans for high-stakes bingo in Albany appear to be on again.

Attorney Bill Plouffe is representing the Passamaquoddy Indian Tribe in submitting an application to the Land Use Regulatory Commission to construct a building on the tribal trust property. Plouffe is a lawyer with Drummond, Woodson and McMahon of Portland.

He said that while the project is still not a certainty, he hoped the permitting process would be completed by late winter or early spring. If that were the case, it

It has usually been teacher cuts that have drawn the most attention during the past six years of tight budgeting in SAD44. But at last week's Bethel selectmen's meeting, it was the support and supplies side of school financing that took center stage.

Bethel directors Fran Head and Wende Gray attended the meeting to ask for selectmen's input regarding the FY'98 school budget.

responded by voicing worry over the condition of school textbooks.

"I have a sixth-grader over there (at Telstar Middle School) who has textbooks which are an embarrassment to any public school district, and in the rest of his classes he doesn't have any," Dresser said. "It's a pathetic state of affairs. Absolutely pathetic."

Head said she was concerned about building maintenance. While Crescent Park Elementary School is in good shape, she said, "the rest of our buildings are becoming rundown."

LET'S ALL BE HEARD

To the Editor:

There are those of us who believe that moving the Bethel Post Office does not mean economic disaster or the end of "village life."

Most of us drive to town to "walk" to the post office. I will still complete my errands at other stores in town if the office is further down the street.

A new building would allow expanded services such as drive-through service windows and drive-by mail boxes. It would be designed to fit the current and growing needs of our community instead of squeezing into a space which must be adapted.

If you feel as I do, please write and say so to: Terry Brooks, P.O. Box 800, Winthrop, ME 04364-0800 -- and your representatives in Washington: Sen. Wm. Cohen, 322 Hart Senate Office Bldg., Washington, DC 20501-1901; Sen. Olympia Snowe, 495 Russell Office Bldg., Washington, DC 20501-1902; and Rep. John Baldacci, 1740 Longworth House Office Bldg., Washington, DC 20515-1901.

Your input can make a difference, and the wishes of the entire community will be heard.

OPPOSES CURFEW

To the Editor:

Recently, attention has been brought to problems caused by adolescents and young adults failing to behave properly in Bethel Village (see front page, Bethel Citizen, September 18). One of the suggested ways to attempt a fix for this problem has been a curfew (presumably for minors). I am strongly opposed to this option.

A curfew would be a poor option for several reasons. First, it would be difficult to maintain with a police force as small as Bethel's. This would either require more police officers, put great strain on existing officers, or simply not get enforced.

Second, it punishes minors not involved in the recent episodes as well as those who have been causing trouble. I agree that some parties have been behaving inappropriately and should be dealt with, but this does not mean that others need to be harmed as well.

Finally, a curfew raises issues of constitutional rights. Though carefully crafted statutes have withstood judicial review, many others have been struck down in court. The Bill of Rights guarantees us certain rights. It also guarantees us the right to do anything that is not otherwise prohibited. Therefore, I have the right to ride down Main Street on a bicycle (which must, of course, be properly lit for night use so as not to be a hazard to others using the street) at 2:30 a.m. while wearing pink and yellow polka-dot bell bottom pants, fake alien antennae, and a Day-Glo shirt with reflective taping. The idea behind this is that if you have the right to do anything they want to, so long as it doesn't harm anyone else. For example, I can stick out my arm to full extend if it makes me happy -- but only as long as I don't hit someone else in the process. Though I have absolutely no intention of riding down Main Street at 2:30 a.m. (nor any intention of being awake at 2:30 a.m.), for that matter, the right to do things which most people consider absurd are the best protectors of riding a bicycle down Main Street at 2:30 a.m. without being unduly stopped and searched by military forces.

Is this a likely scenario? Not unless many, many things in this country change to a very great degree. However, if we do not protect our rights here, are those who would like to increase their own power by using these rights? The Sept. 18 issue of the Citizen offers a couple of better alternatives, including police patrols on mountain bikes (a possible bad idea in many situations "Pacific Blue" stands aside) and installing Neighborhood Watches (another proven fool).

As a Newry resident and Gould Academy student, I urge you to effectively deal with the problems currently presented as effectively as possible without being overly restrictive to the rest of the populace.

CPS VOLUNTEERS

To the Editor:

Volunteers are one of the things that make Crescent Park School such a special place for children to grow and learn. When teachers, parents and community members work together on behalf of our kids, the results can be astounding.

Last year at CPS we had 80 to 100 volunteers weekly. Many more community volunteers came into school weekly -- coaches, older folks who read to students and worked individually with them; parents who brought food, baked goodies, shared their knowledge or particular interests; Teacher students; Gould students; and many more. We are so fortunate to have such caring, giving folks in our community. Studies show that communities working together toward the interests of the kids make a difference in their future. For interested folks who'd like to volunteer, sign-up sheets will be available at CPS or Bethel Town Office.

For any volunteer who may need to become a little more familiar with CPS, Ellen Marshall and Marilyn Swan will be greeting folks in the cafeteria 10 to 11 a.m. on Thursday, Sept. 26 (tomorrow).

DESTINED TO BE A PARKING LOT?--The Passamaquoddy Tribe is applying for a LURC permit to set up a high stakes bingo operation in Albany. Resident Doty Duddy said plans include a parking lot for 800 vehicles, to be located on the current site of Fred Meader's home. Preliminary surveying is now under way. would then be logical for construction to proceed next spring and summer, he said.

DeLuca Hoffman Associates Inc. of South Portland has been hired by the Passamaquoddy to put the application together, overseeing site work and wetlands studies.

Plouffe said surveying for the application is now under way.

Catherine Varney, senior project analyst for the Land Use Regulatory Commission, said she is pleased the tribe will apparently follow the application process. She said the tribe had been maintaining it did not need LURC approval for the project because it was on tribal land, and federal laws would override state regulations.

She also said that with the proposed plan, resident Fred Meader would have to be evicted from his home, which she said is located on the trust land. Plouffe said he believed that was true.

Plouffe said he had no details of the building plan at this time. "A rough footprint has been developed," he said.

Local meeting planned

The possibility of a gambling operation has been discussed for several years, and has faced strong opposition locally.

Albany resident Doty Duddy has been one of the most vocal opponents. She said that she had information from a reliable source that the tribe would have to meet two criteria for project approval: show the need for such a facility in the area, and prove that it is compatible with the area. "On both counts, it's totally out of line," she said.

She also said the building would measure 4,000 square feet and have parking for 800 vehicles. The parking lot, she said, would be located where Meader's residence currently stands.

Duddy said she is organizing a citizen meeting regarding the plans. "We invite the leaders of this effort, as well as their backers, to come forward and present their plans," she said. The date of the meeting will be announced.

REMEMBERING 'DICK' HASTINGS

To the Editor:

Euphemia Dick Hastings, known to many of us as "Dick" after her mother's family's Scottish surname, was probably the most eccentric, most original person I have known. She also had her own way of doing things and approach to the world that was often unique as well. In pursuit of some of her projects, she could be demanding and even exasperating to those around her. She was also one of the brightest people I have known. She tended to "dabble" in a variety of things from painting to gardening. She often lacked discipline and focus, but her spirit was free, perhaps the freest I have ever known anyone to possess.

Both of us enjoyed watching thunderstorms with all their release of energy, knowing that they are essential to the maintenance of life itself on this planet. She loved nature and animals, especially cats.

She also was one of the worst drivers I have ever known; I made the mistake of riding with her once to Sunday River. It was without a doubt one of the most anxious times I have ever known.

I can still see her in her pith helmet which she wore on many of her outside projects, providing a touch of the exotic. I once asked why she wore that type of headgear and she responded that she started wearing it on a trip to Honduras and believed nothing else felt as comfortable.

She was one of the most generous people I have known, always trying to help someone or share anything she had. She was for several years an active volunteer at the Congregational Church and the Bethel Historical Society. Previous to her retiring here, she was active in a variety of volunteer service activities in the Boston area.

Once at the annual Guide's Dinner she took a large plateful of food much of which she did not eat. My mother, who hates to see any waste, called Dick a "pig." She said nothing in response at the time, but the following year Dick wore a pig's snout to the dinner just to annoy my mother, which certainly had the desired effect. How I laughed when I saw Helen Morton chatting with Dick seemingly oblivious to her facial attachment.

Being a bit outrageous was nothing new and something that she thoroughly enjoyed. During the 1931 Indian Raid celebration, she rode a float in a skimpy bathing suit, which for that time was very unusual and scandalized many Bethel residents.

One of the most vivid memories I have of her was the time in 1974 that the historical society held a reception to honor donors who had made gifts of artifacts. One of those artifacts was a moose call and someone made the mistake of asking her how it worked. She proceeded to show them by rising on her tiptoes and producing a loud, almost blood curdling sound. The whole group stopped in mid-sentence, took one look at the cause of the disruption, found it was only Dick, and promptly went back to conversation. It was one of the funniest situations I have ever encountered in my years at the historical society.

Dick once helped her cousin Eugene Shorrock, known in the family as "the snake lady" since among other distinctions in serpent circles was the fact that she had a pet boa constrictor for more than 50 years, rearrange her pen at a snake show. Eugene was not satisfied with the situation so she handed Dick several snakes to hold while she made some changes. It was just about opening time and a lady barged in a little early. Dick turned around to see what was happening with a whole arm load of writhing snakes. The lady took one look and promptly fainted. Dick thought this was hysterically funny and was still laughing heartily about it when she told me the story many years later.

These are among the many memories I have of one who could be considered part of a vanishing breed -- those who certainly march to a different drummer and can be placed proudly in the "Hall of Fame" as a town character.

Briefly

Speck tower work delayed again

GRAFTON NOTCH--The unavailability of Army National Guard helicopters has once again put on hold plans to rebuild the deteriorated tower on the summit of Old Speck Mountain. It now appears the former fire tower and popular scenic lookout may not be rebuilt until at least the early spring. Until it is rebuilt, it will remain closed to hikers and foliage viewers. Andy Haskell, manager of Grafton Notch State Park, and a group of local hikers had hoped to rebuild the tower last year, using donated materials, volunteer labor and -- for the heavy lifting -- helicopters from the Maine Army National Guard. By last summer the materials and volunteers (including an engineer) were on hand, but uncooperative weather made it impossible to go ahead with the project. Earlier this year restrictions were placed on the operation of the helicopters, due to possible safety problems. Haskell said he has also looked into the cost of hiring a private helicopter contractor, but that with the weather closing in it is unlikely that any work will be possible this year.

Andover withdrawal would be costly

ANDOVER--The Board of Selectmen last week released a study showing it would be more expensive for the town to withdraw from SAD44 and operate its own elementary school than to stay in the district. The study was approved by townspeople in August, and has been done by David Brown and Dale Doughty. Their report said Andover pays $415,504 as its share of SAD44 costs, and they estimated that the town would pay $521,103 under its own system. They also said the age and configuration of the building are a concern -- specifically, the condition of the older windows, the multiple levels in the building, narrow stairs, exposed electrical components, below-grade classrooms, an old heating system, dulled wood finish in the toilet area, and the amount of exposed wood with flammable materials. Handicapped accessibility was also a concern.

Fox turns down Water District

ANDOVER--A Water District request to buy land for a new well from John Fox may have fallen through, trustees said last week. Fox's attorney sent the district a letter saying Fox will not sell the property, and is withdrawing his offer for an easement for a well. The district had notified him it is only interested in owning the land. There did not appear to be any basis for a mutually satisfying agreement for Mr. Fox and the district at this time, said attorney Richard Spencer. Former selectman Wayne Delano suggested the district continue its search for a water supply on land it bought across from Fox's land. The district has been directed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency to find a new water source to replace the Stony Brook Reservoir.

Emerson denies conflict of interest

ANDOVER--Water district trustee Fred Emerson denied last week that he had a conflict of interest when his company was hired to clean the Stony Brook Reservoir. Former trustee Howard Spidle alleged Emerson was personally hired by the district for $460 in 1995. Emerson said his company was hired, not him personally. Spidle said the check was made out to Emerson personally. Emerson also said when he abstains from voting the district can hire whoever they want to work. He said he only allows his company to work for AWD when there is an emergency and no one else is available, or when his company has equipment the district can't get elsewhere. He also said he never created his own work while on the board. Former selectman Wayne Delano said in a small town, anything that is done affects someone else.

Assessors hope to dodge a bullet

NEWRY--Maine Equalization Consultants, hired by the town to do a revaluation of property, is starting its work on the Sunday River side of town at the Riley town line. Original plans called for the work to begin at the Bethel town line. Assessors Michael Austin and Donna Moore Hayes want to complete property inspections in the rural areas that may be popular hunting areas prior to the start of hunting season. "We think it is not only in our best interest but also that of the town if you wish to have us around to complete the project," Austin and Moore said in a letter to selectmen.

Woodstock valuation jumps

WOODSTOCK--Woodstock's preliminary state valuation for 1997 is $4 million higher than this year. Town Manager Vern Maxfield said he was surprised by the amount of the increase. He said there has been a considerable amount of property sales during the past year, with much of it involving shorefront property. The 13-lot Summit Hill Subdivision also added to the valuation figures, as well as several housing starts. The 1996 valuation was $54.8 million, while the 1997 figure is $58.8 million. Maxfield said the increase means some revaluation will probably have to be done next year, with most attention focused on land values.

Railroad to fix crossings

GREENWOOD--The St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railroad Co. plans to replace the crossing on Old County Road this fall, according to Town Manager Liz Lavalette. A railroad company study reported the planks have rotted and sunk below the level of the pavement, forcing motorists to nearly stop and creep over the tracks to avoid damage to their vehicles, or risk losing control if passing at the posted speed limit. Selectmen also hope to get caution lights installed at the crossing. Another crossing, on the Greenwood Road near Howe Hill Road, will also be improved this fall.

Crank phones go to the fair

FRYEBURG--Through the efforts of the Hathaway family of the Bryant Pond Telephone Co. and the Fryeburg Historical Society, a working display of old-time phones has been set up at the Fryeburg Fair. The fair runs from Sept. 29 to Oct. 6. Several models of old-style phones will be displayed, along with the first switchboard in Fryeburg and the original switchboard from the Rangeley Inn. The Bryant Pond Telephone Co. was immortalized as the last crank telephone company in the United States. Elden Hathaway, a retired railroad employee who bought the company in 1951, made his last call on the phone system on Oct. 11, 1983. Michael Hathaway has written a book about the years his parents ran the company. Titled "Everything Happened Around the Switchboard," the book will be on sale at the fair. It recounts stories told to him by his parents along with several personal experiences. The telephone display will be located at the fair's Farm Museum.

Forest Practices Act violation settled

AUGUSTA--The Maine Forest Service announced last week the settlement of a Forest Practices Act clear-cutting violation on the land of Norris Bennett, a woodlot owner and logger, of Lovell. Bennett created an illegal 40-acre clear-cut which violated the act, and the rules governing the size and arrangement of clear-cuts, according to MFS enforcement coordinator Richard Morse. In the settlement agreement, Bennett acknowledged the violation, paid a $2,160 civil penalty, and agreed to the following terms: not to cut any timber on the property for 10 years; ensure that adequate regeneration is in place within five years and have it certified by a licensed Maine forester; and obtain after-the-fact, written permission from abutting landowners to clear-cut within 100 feet of the property line or pay a $250 fine for every neighbor who was unwilling to give the required permission. Bennett also reportedly carried out timber harvesting on the site without first filing a notification with the MFS, for which he received a summons to District Court.

Rotary Club notes:

The Bethel Rotary Club is busy planning for its fall/winter activities with a new group of committee chairs and officers. We had a busy summer, including a visit here in Bethel with our new district governor, Craig Wellman, on Monday, Aug. 19 and Tuesday, Aug. 20. Craig was the guest of honor at a club lobster feed held at Al Barth's house. Al and his wife Lee did a wonderful job organizing this fun social. Craig presented his vision for our district for this year to the full club at the Tuesday morning meeting and he promises an exciting year with new challenges of service for Rotary.

Our other summer programs included a "classification talk" by new member Moe Conway; a presentation on "People First" by Carol Gaudin and Amy Ryan; a snapshot picture of the life of dancer and choreographer Randy James (Robin Zinchuk's brother) who has been visiting artistic director of the Ram Island Dance Company in Portland; an interesting and humorous presentation by Marie Martin of Dixfield on her Acadian French heritage; a short review by Erin Kavanaugh on her summer experience in Morocco, made possible by a Rotary scholarship; a "French Lesson" by local resident Monique Bailey; and a special presentation made to local businessman Leon Favreau. The Vocational Service Committee had as one of its goals this past year, to recognize someone in the local area for a Vocational Service Award. Leon was pleased to receive it! Some of the upcoming plans of Rotary for the fall are: the Vocational Service Committee, chaired by Gary Stuer, is helping to be greeters at the upcoming Job Opportunity Day on Saturday, Sept. 28; the Community Service Committee, chaired by Rene McGrew, is planning the annual Country Breakfast on Sunday, Dec. 1 from 8 to 11 a.m. at Gould Academy dining hall; the International Service Committee, chaired by Bill Clough, just welcomed Rotary exchange student Tom Hick from Belgium and will host a group of District Inbound Rotary Exchange students at the Sunday River Inn this weekend.

The club, with the able leadership of Rotarian Linda Varel, is successfully orchestrating the first Outbound Exchange Student from Telstar in many years. Jerry Greenwell of Telstar is in Germany for one year. If anyone from the community would like to write to Jerry, his address is: Jerry Greenwell, Herde Strabe 12, 26427 Essens, Germany.

From the Bethel Police log:

Juveniles summonsed for cigarettes

On Sept. 20 at 3:08 p.m. police observed two juveniles with cigarettes on the common. One was summonsed. The second left the scene and will be summonsed when seen again.

In a continuation of the hooliganism incidents of last week's police log, on Sept. 18 two residents reported juveniles throwing golf balls on Main Street. Police stopped and searched three subjects. Ryan Wodka, 19, of Bethel was arrested and charged with criminal mischief and disorderly conduct. He was transported to the Oxford County jail where he was booked, further processed and incarcerated pending bail. On Sept. 19 two groups were involved in a verbal/physical altercation on Main Street. Police arrested one juvenile for disorderly conduct, Quentin Buker, 18, of West Paris was also arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and obstructing government administration.

Thursday, Sept. 19

At 10:50 p.m. a Bryant Pond resident reported she and several friends had been verbally harassed by a male subject at the Big Apple Store on Route 2. She said he had called them names and been quite profane. Police went to the man's residence and spoke with him. He was very intoxicated. He said he had had words with two people, and it was over a fight the complainant and his daughter had been in at school. He was advised to call police if he had problems and not attempt to handle them himself. All parties were provided statement forms.

Friday, Sept. 20

At 5:03 p.m. a male subject was observed in front of his residence in the company of four juveniles. Ryan Wodka, 19, was charged for being in violation of conditions of release set upon his release from jail on Sept. 12. He was incarcerated in the Oxford County Jail, held without bail until a court appearance on Sept. 23.

Saturday, Sept. 21

At 1:10 a.m. a subject was stopped on Route 2 and processed at the scene for OUI, with test results pending. A search of the vehicle revealed a small wooden smoking device/marijuana container. David A. Donnelly, 24, of Windham was charged with OUI and possession of drug paraphernalia. Donnelly and his female occupant (also intoxicated) were transported to their destination by a state trooper.

Tuesday, Sept. 24

At 8 a.m. a Northeast Bank employee reported that someone had moved concrete parking barriers in the bank parking lot. The complainant said juveniles had been skateboarding in the lot the previous evening. The bank requested that the skateboarding be stopped.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. BOOKS IN BAD SHAPE?—Some Telstar classes need new textbooks, but school administrators said replacement is being delayed until guidelines for subject areas can be revised. In the meantime, seventh-graders in Mary Richardson's science classes use the books only in the classroom, because there are not enough copies to take home. Here, student Brenda Hurd shows the poor condition of one of the most deteriorated books.

safety concerns regarding that building.

Is it all doom and gloom on the material side of the school budget?

Not necessarily, according to school officials.

Regarding textbooks, middle school principal Dick Blackman said budget constraints have affected book purchases to some extent. But he also said the district is holding off on buying new science and social studies books until guidelines for teaching those subjects can be revised for the upper grades. That process will likely happen this year.

Another issue in textbook replacement is the increasing role of computers. Blackman said that particularly in science and social studies, the material becomes outdated quickly.

It may be that CD-ROMs, which can be updated relatively cheaply, are more cost-effective. "Books are $40 each," Blackman said.

Meanwhile, teachers and students are getting along as best they can. With 100 seventh-graders and 90 books, science teacher Mary Richardson has the students use the five-year old books in the classroom only.

"It's harder for some who might benefit from taking the book home and reading it with their parents," she said.

Wayne Howe, TMS sixth-grade social studies teacher, has 11-year-old books, which he described as being in very poor condition.

"It's embarrassing to have to pass them out," he said.

At Telstar High School, health teacher Steve Keane said he needs new books for his semester-long course. The current ones, for instance, "have nothing about AIDS in them," he said.

But at the middle school, he said, books are not the way to go anyway. That course only lasts nine weeks, and a text is not practical.

High school principal Ted Davis said that generally speaking, his school has kept up with book replacement. As with the middle school, most of the needs are in science and social studies, he said.

At the elementary level, CPS principal David Murphy agrees with Blackman that the trend is toward computers, as well as other materials.

"In social studies, we've gone to trade books, maps and globes. There's no such thing as a current social studies text. They can't keep up with the changes in the world," he said.

Powell: AES, busses are safe

On the issue of building maintenance, business manager Bruce Powell agrees that some maintenance has been put off, but he said there is no truth to the contention that AES is unsafe.

Andover selectman Laura Hutchins said last week she had been told by consultants that if the state fire marshal visited the school, he could close it immediately because of fire hazards and handicapped inaccessibility to the library.

"That's inaccurate and unfounded," Powell said. The fire marshal has in fact been to AES regularly, and "we have done anything that is needed."

That includes, for instance, treating wooden paneling in the school with a fire-retardant chemical.

Powell also said that while the school is not totally in ADA compliance, "we address things as they are needed."

A portion of the school's roof does need repair, but it is not a safety issue, he said.

Replacement of older SAD4 busses has also been a topic of discussion in recent budget cycles. The state has called for the district to purchase two new busses a year.

"We're off by a bus a year for the past four years," Powell said.

Does that mean the district is operating old, unsafe busses? No -- they're just not operating cost-effective ones, according to Powell.

"It would be more cost-effective in the long run to replace them. The maintenance costs are going up because they're older," he said. "But our bus fleet is safe."

School board

were very pleased with them," he said.

Telstar scores in reading, writing and arts and humanities were higher than the state average, while science and social studies were slightly lower. The math score matched the state average.

The scores (district first, state average second) were: reading, 320/305; writing, 290/280; math, 295/295; science, 315/320; social studies, 265/270; arts and humanities, 295/290.

The class exceeded the school's three-year cumulative average in all subjects.

Also on Monday, Adult Ed director Cathy Newell announced that the EvenStart program, administered through NOVA, had received renewed grant funding for four more years.

The family literacy program teaches early childhood education, adult education and parenting skills to eligible families with children up to age seven.

Newell said the grant would mean $90,000 a year, and allow more families to be added to the program.

Margaret Hand also resigned from the board Monday, effective Oct. 1. She will be moving out of the district.

Hand was in her third term as a Woodstock director. She served several years as chairman.

Director Tim LaVallee will lead a tour of the Gould Academy/Sunday River Competition Center.

Alumni can catch up with old friends at the wine and cheese reception under the tent at the Park Mason Alumni House at 5 p.m. At 6 p.m. the class of 1946 will gather at the Alumni House for their 50th Reunion Dinner, while the other classes will dine by candlelight at the annual Alumni Banquet in Gehring Dining Hall.

On Sunday, faculty members John Wight and Mac Davis will lead a fall foliage canoe trip, departing from the Bell Tower at 10 a.m. A "walkabout" of the Gould campus and surrounding area will also leave from the Bell Tower at 10.

A special Alumni Memorial Church Service begins at 10:30 a.m. at the West Parish Congregational Church, adjacent to campus, and brunch is available in Gehring Dining Hall from 10:30 a.m. until noon.

Classes celebrating their five-year reunions have scheduled gatherings at various locations in the area on both Friday and Saturday evenings.

A more detailed schedule for the weekend's events can be found on page 11 of The Citizen. Questions regarding Alumni Weekend can be directed to Fran Bernier, Director of Alumni Relations, at 824-7707.

Tips for viewing the local foliage

Maine Department of Conservation field employees are offering fall foliage viewing suggestions on forest land the department manages.

In western Maine, Tom Charles, Bureau of Park and Lands Western Region manager, suggests views of the Richardson Lake Management Unit with the White Mountains in the background.

There are several popular viewing lookouts along Route 17, including the "Height of Land" in Township D.

Andy Haskell, manager of Grafton Notch State Park says the park's roadside turnouts, picnic areas and trails offer excellent views of the Mahoosuc Mountains. Trails lead to popular lookouts, such as the Eyebrow and Table Rock, and trails and lookouts on the Bureau of Parks and Lands' Mahoosuc Management Unit.

area attractive to local youngsters. Mt. Abram ski area in Locke Mills recently announced plans for night skiing (see related article). The area also plans a lighted snowboarding halfpipe, as well as snow tubing and a skating rink.

Sunday River spokesman Ken Beaulieu said his resort's plans are unrelated to Mt. Abram's.

"We're not competing against one another," he said. "People have been asking us to do this."

Mt. Abram owner Rick Hoddinott also said he didn't see Sunday

River's project as a competitive move, but rather as something that would add to the overall appeal of the area.

"I'm excited about it," he said. "The more things going on around here -- night or day -- the better."

At Sunday River, guests staying in condominiums would be the primary clientele, Beaulieu said.

He also said Sunday River has no plans to institute night skiing.

owner of Main Street Realty in Bethel, again referred to the positive economic potential.

"As a homeowner who has also seen the area from a real-estate point of view, I would be in favor of anything that would provide some excitement and sense of vitality," she said.

Lon Dresser, the parent of a teenager, said the project would provide a positive activity for youngsters. "I'd rather have my son out skiing at night than down in Lewiston/Auburn," he said.

The lighting plan calls for illuminating the slopes until 9 on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, and also on special occasions such as New Year's Eve.

The Maine Department of Environmental Protection has approved the plan, with the stipulation that the lights be turned out no later than 10 p.m.

Hoddinott claimed the project would result in more than 30 additional part-time jobs (including ski school) and at least one full-time, year-round position.

The Planning Board is expected to take up the application again at its next meeting, on Monday, Oct. 7.

Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

Jackson-Silver American Legion Post and Auxiliary members met on Thursday, Sept. 19, at which time they enjoyed a program arranged by Mary Lyon, who accompanied the singers on the piano.

The program was based upon the Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion Auxiliary, which is almost identical to that of the American Legion, as the auxiliary's reason for being is to assist the American Legion in attaining their goals of helping the veteran, his family, the community and nation.

Each aim and purpose was explained by the spoken word or by appropriate musical numbers.

Audience participation was encouraged during some of these. Several Junior members took part along with the seniors. Refreshments of cookies and punch were enjoyed before the regular business meetings.

It was reported that "Greenwood Days" held the previous weekend at the Legion Hall benefited the Greenwood Fire Department and Auxiliary, the Recreation Committee, the town buildings, the Historical Society, and the Locke Mills Union Church. A bigger and better celebration is being planned for next year.

In other business, a donation was voted to Opportunity Farm, Sylvia Dunham volunteered to fill out the term of the chaplain who had resigned, and Velma Scribner was welcomed as the newest member by transfer.

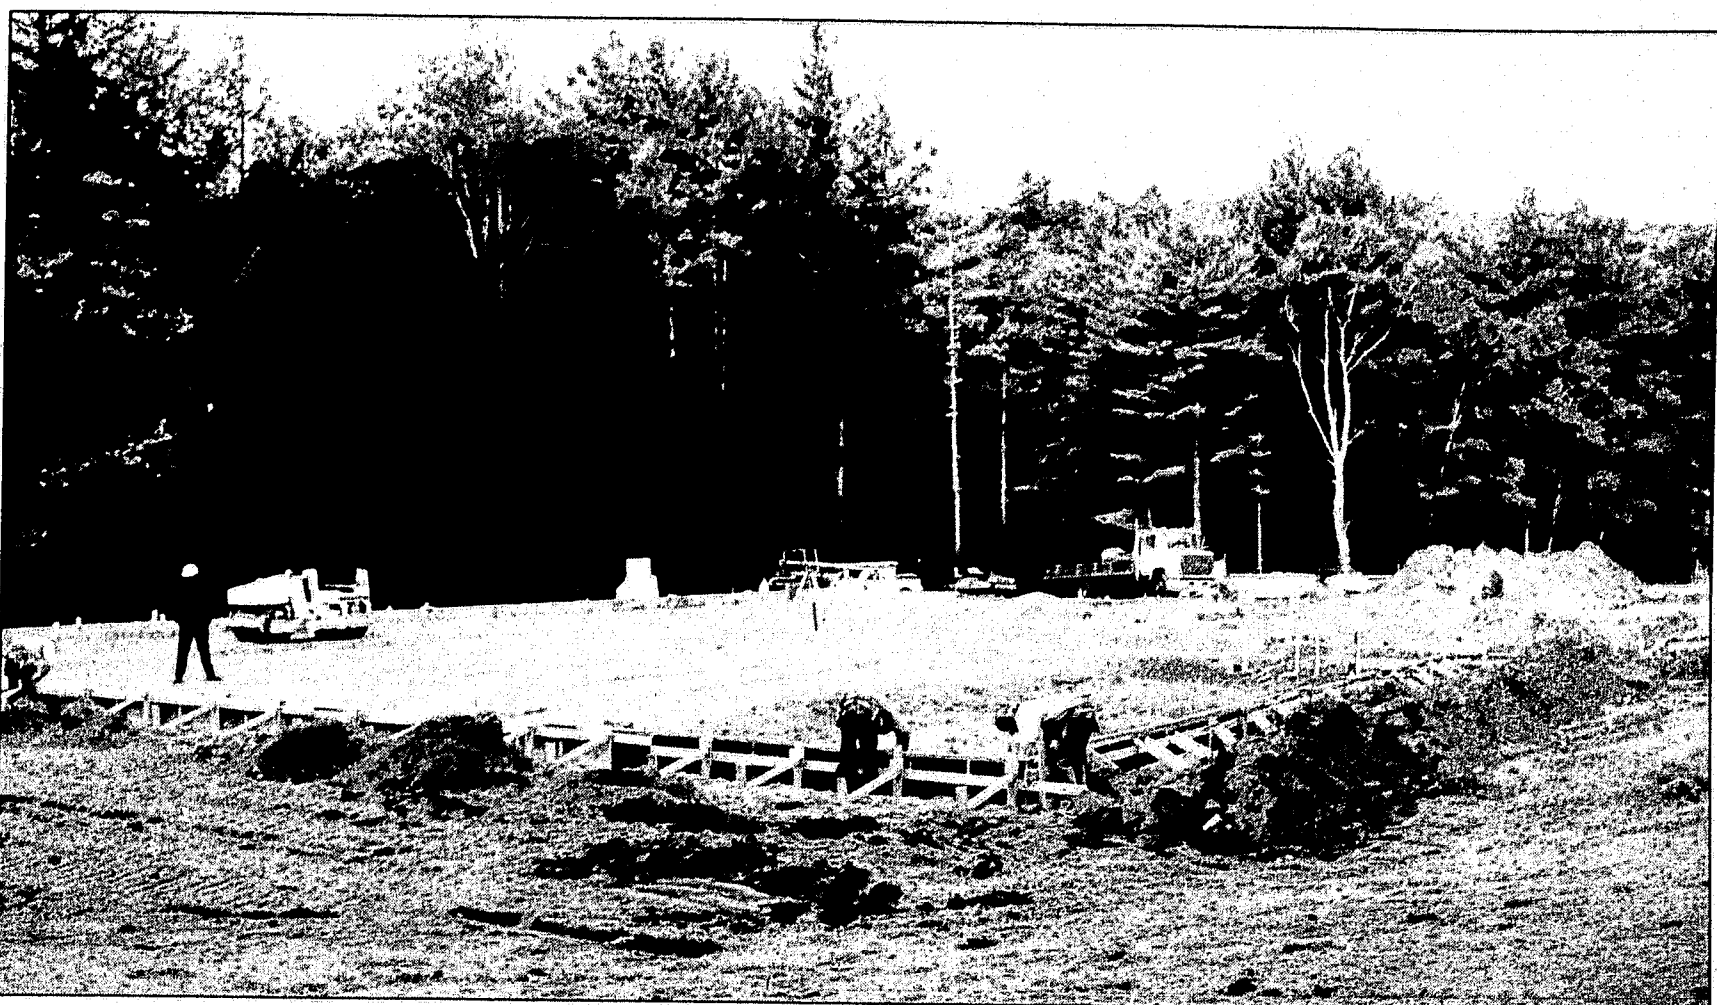

Two members are planning to attend the Regional Workshop in Rhode Island next week and several, including two Juniors, will attend the Fall Conference in Westbrook the following weekend.

Boys' and Girls' State delegates will be honored with a banquet on Oct. 17. Those sponsored by this Post and Unit are invited to attend and bring their family members. These delegates are expected to report at that time what they learned and how they became involved in this "mock government" program which they attended in June.

This will also be the annual "Membership Supper" at which time it is hoped that all those who have not already done so will have paid their 1997 dues.

Oct. 3 is the date for the next regular meeting.

BREAKING NEW GROUND AT CAMP SUSAN CURTIS—An estimated $100,000 worth of professional services have been donated to the design and construction of a new dining hall and activity center at Camp Susan Curtis in East Stoneham. The 10,000-square-foot facility will include a gym for large group and rainy day activities, a new kitchen and a dining hall for 200. The mission of the camp is to build individual character and self-confidence for economically disadvantaged Maine children through camping, educational and social experiences. The camp is located on Trout Lake. Here, a crew does groundwork for the project.

Maine's Thy Kingdom Come

By MIKE BROWN

There can be a case made against frivolous special sessions of the Maine Legislature in what has heretofore been known as the Constitution of Maine. Depending on the eye and pocketbooks of the beholder, the governor's call for the recent special session on the Maine woods is a case in point.

Under the constitution, special sessions can occur under only two circumstances: one by the governor or one by the Legislature.

The Legislature can be convened in special session, constitutionally, on call of the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House with the consent of a majority of the members of the legislature of each political party with all members having first been polled. Under the constitution, the Legislature then has the responsibility not to make laws "repugnant" to the constitution. The governor has no say in a legislatively called special session.

The governor, on the other hand, has the executive power to convene the Legislature "on extraordinary occasions." The Legislature has no veto power over a gubernatorial call to convene.

The recent special session was a call by Gov. Angus King because there certainly was no legislative majority opinion that such a session was "extraordinary" and that, in the case of Republicans, if convened, the results could be "repugnant."

The woody three-day session probably cost the taxpayers some $200,000 which will be refuted by special sessionphiles who pocketed $170 per day in early autumn legislator bonuses because the numbers can be stewed in the huge cauldron called the state budget.

The "extraordinary" reason for the session was a political initiative to pass a competing measure resolution: that is, Gov. King's Star Chamber Maine Forest Compact conceived and written in secret enclaves without the attendance of one, that's one, elected representative to the Maine Legislature. Taxation without representation is alive, alive O! in Dirigo.

That the Star Chamber packet was ultimately delivered to the surrogates of the people in an "extraordinary" chatfest of the Legislature left the legislators with two options: one, pass the pest and collect $510 passing go home, or defeat the pest, collect $510 passing go home and look like bagmen on an Augusta junket.

The media savvy Gov. King had the 186 lawmakers by the short hairs. But a funny thing happened on the way to the Rotunda. The Democrats predictably sided with their social soul mate, King, but the Republicans in the Senate became mulish. They reasoned, and plausibly, that the Green Party's referendum standing alone in the November ballot forest would itself be clear-cut. So why muck up the Maine forest with competing chaff?

The real reason was a rescue operation by King and his Star Chamber to accumulate media points as the savvy saviors of Maine, bulwark King's reelection campaign already underway and save face for the Democrats who stiffed the clear-cut issue in convention and which had come back to snake-bite them in an election year.

And so the milling masses of lawmakers were faced with a 23-page Star Chamber tome which nobody really understood. The King Lobby Forces included the hypercritical Maine paper companies (who will do whatever they please despite referendum or compact), the membership building environmental groups, toady Democrats, maverick Republicans and King's lobby knights who rarely ride their stabled horses up one flight to the working floor of the Legislature.

After the forest bill pail had cleared Saturday, a 27-page whoopee woodpecker compact resolution had passed and the media birds-on-a-wire once again hailed King as the best thing that has happened to Maine since salt codfish and pork scraps.

In reality, the compact passed the legislature by only two votes. The house passed it with a let's-get-the-hell-outa-here few votes margin, but it had to pass both Houses and the Senate R's were banging away at their defectors in secret caucuses as they have a want to do. The King margin was getting Humpty-Dumpty-ish.

But finally, on a 19-14 vote (majority is 18), the Senate passed Thy Kingdom Come Compact. If a couple prospective leadership/gubernatorial candidate R-Senators had voted no, the bill would have died in no-man's land between Houses, and King and His Star Chamber would have had to clear-cut someplace for their foxholes.

Now, the nation's only independent governor can blame the public whichever way it votes on Maine forest practices in November.

But not quite. The real winner emerging from the special session is the third option -- none of the above.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson
Hi readers. Congratulations go out this week to Mr. and Mrs. Danny Rolfe on the birth of a baby girl born Sept. 11 at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway. She weighed 8 pounds, 10 ounces and is named Abby Pearl. I heard that she is "cute as a button."

Eddie and Lois Niemi and Eleanor and Albert Nelson were at the Nelson's camp at Wilson's Mills on Tuesday. We did see one moose on the way, in a mud puddle by the main road, but when he saw us he put his head up and front feet up and ran away into the woods. The logging crews are still working on jobs across the Big Brook bridge, which is just below the camp. They have built several roads over there and gravel pits. The brooks and Azis-cos Lake are quite low now compared to what they were in August. We had good, cool weather while there and the wood fire seemed nice and warm and cozy.

I forgot to mention last week about Chet Osgood's little "twirlies." These are brightly painted ornaments that he has been making and selling like hotcakes. They are fascinating to watch when hung on a tree branch or any place where they can twirl around in the breeze. First it looks like a star and then it's two triangles and then another shape is formed just by its turning. My neighbor across the street saw it one day and was so curious he just had to come over and see what it was.

The Stoneham Knight Riders Snowmobile Club held their annual "Land Appreciation Day" with a cookout of chicken and steak barbecue, etc., at the Club House on Sunday, Sept. 15. About 40 people attended. There were picnic tables under the large, open tent and some ate there and some went inside. Eben Harmon and Bob Wymann were the grill tenders, and Alice Harmon, Anne Wymann and Jean Littlefield set things up inside. It was cloudy but did not rain, and it turned out to be a nice day all around.

D.U.V. members and interested friends who might like to join, don't forget the pizza party and meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 25, at 6 p.m. at the East Stoneham Church vestry. Just call 928-2611 or 928-3096 so they will know how much to have, or if you need transportation they will provide it.

There is to be a public supper at North Waterford, 5 to 6:30 p.m., on Sept. 28 to benefit Charlie and Arlene Merrill, who are still at MMC Hospital in Lewiston after being in a bad car accident. They are recovering but slowly.

Upton

by Amy Geiling
Hi everyone! Upton has seen mostly sunny days with chilly evenings. Last week we had a brief encounter with hail.

Margaret Mitchell's sister-in-law, Marjorie Griffin, from Windham died unexpectedly Sept. 9. The funeral was held at Dolby Funeral Home.

The Geiling family visited the Biodome in Montreal last week. Nice time and Matt enjoyed the elevation.

Here's a little moose trivia taken from the "Hunting in Maine" supplement of the Sunday Sun-Journal. Bull moose can have an antler spread up to 78 inches wide and they have a tassel of hair-covered skin which hangs from the throat and is known as the bell.

The leaves are looking good. You have from now until about the second week of October to observe Upton's gorgeous carpet of colors.

See you soon!

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan
In spite of wrong publishing dates, no date at all and rain, the reunion of the Greenwood City School, held on Sept. 15, was a success.

At least a month ago, on an evening in August, a few of the pupils I once had in school invited me to meet with them to talk about a school reunion. The meeting was a success, so Althea, Gordon, Joan, and Betty went to work on the plans that were made. So 50 of us met at the Woodstock School House for a party, and what a party it was!

As I entered I stood in a wonderland of delight. I was greeted by a hug, smiles and a corsage was pinned on my dress. How pretty it was! It was my first surprise. Next, my attention was captured by a large, beautifully decorated cake, pertaining to a school, and an inscription just for me.

I was told where to put my memorabilia (me included). I was especially careful of my treasured ones: (1) a plate with all the names of the children who went to school to me from 1926 through 1968 -- if 100 seems but a few, over 42 years, remember that it was a one-room school with one teacher for eight years; (2) My reward certificate of meritorious service; and (3) a large painting of the school house made by Fay Morgan Holt. I added many others, as did other people.

There was a delicious lunch and many enjoyed it.

I met many whom I had not seen for many years. Time had made changes and some I did not know. From the year 1926, my first teaching year, the two left were Valerie Ring Andrews and Fay Morgan Holt.

The school houses and courses of study are much different today than in my years of teaching, when the emphasis was on the 3 R's; remaining documents such as essays, poems, and letters showed that instruction in writing and spelling was very thorough. There were classes in geography, history, English, grammar, health, and a graphic system of penmanship. The younger grades profited greatly by listening to the older ones recite. Our school was one loved and remembered.

The little schoolhouse is no more. For the world moves on a pace. But many have gone from its doors. To fill an honored place. Faces of loved ones. In my memory linger yet. And the time I spent in that one-room schoolhouse. I shall never forget.

North Newry

by Gil Seeley
Call to Worship at the Newry Community Church on Sept. 15 was held at 9 a.m., with Pastor

Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and Gail Wheeler (Kathy's sister) at the piano. Her daughter, Mitzi Hutchinson, sang the hymn "In the Garden." The Message of the Day was, "For what do we live?", from Romans 14:8 -- "For whether we live, we live unto the Lord, and whether we die, we die unto the Lord, whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's." A special was given by Gil Seeley, "Jesus a real Man, not a Myth."

The date for the food sale and flea market of the Newry Community Church Ladies Circle is scheduled for the first Saturday of October, which is the 5th. Bring your own table ($5 each). Anyone who wishes to donate food for the food sale, articles, clothing or furniture for the church table can contact Sylvia Wright at 824-2262 or Sylvia Harrington at 824-2320. The event starts at 10 a.m. and lasts till 4 p.m. All this is done to benefit the Newry Community Church.

Norman and Louise Tetley spent the weekend of Sept. 13 in Worcester, Mass., at the Northeast Shriners' convention. A parade of 14 temples paraded on Saturday. A good time was had by all.

Karlene Bachelder, Gil Seeley and Olive Anderson went bowling at Oxford Lanes in Rumford one day last week. Karlene was high on the triples and singles with one string of 101, beating Gil by five pins. She had one strike and three spares, Gil had two strikes.

Happy 18th Birthday (belated) to Jason Berry on Sept. 14.

Kevin Wright caught a pig at Oxford County Fair.

High Street

West Paris
by Russell Yates
Howdy friends. Today's story is a short one, but I want to let you all know that I returned home from Stephen's Memorial Hospital on Saturday, Sept. 14, after my second visit there, and I seem to be gaining every day.

I want to thank you all for the many prayers, get well wishes and cards that all help so much when you are sick and trying to get better.

There was the time when it seemed like I had written my last column, but with the services of an excellent surgeon and his staff, also the attention and care from a beautiful staff of nurses at the hospital, and last but not least the prayers, get well wishes and cards from all of you good friends out there, one just had to gain, there was no other way.

Sister Peggy spent considerable time at the hospital near my bedside and told me many times, "You've been through other trials just as bad as this before, and you survived. You're going to survive this one, too."

Well, friends, I guess that she finally convinced me, as I soon began to show signs of improvement and the 20-percent chance of survival that Dr. Bean had given me soon began to grow.

I am now headed for complete recovery. It is a long trail to follow, but I'll make it one step at a time.

I must not forget to mention the services I received from Tri-Town Rescue. It was simply wonderful the way they responded to the calls. The first time we called them was in the forenoon and it didn't seem possible that they could get here as fast as they did. The personnel on that rescue knew exactly what to do and how to do it, and I was on my way to the hospital in a very few minutes.

When I had to go to the hospital the second time, I'm sure those on call were home sleeping, but they responded very quickly, also.

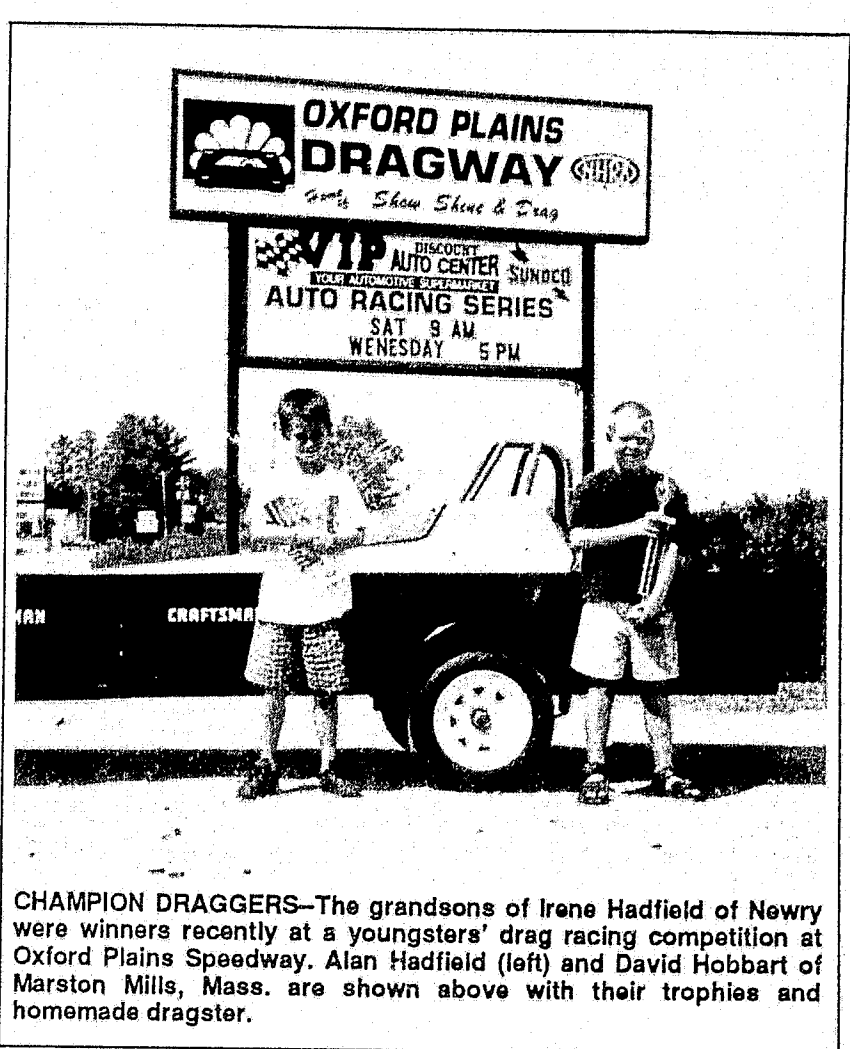

Friends, we are fortunate to have Tri-Town Rescue and let's not forget it. We are also fortunate to have Stephens Memorial Hospital. They can't do everything, but they are close and that can make the difference between life or death.

So once again, thank you all for everything, and with the progress that I am now making, I should soon be writing my regular column once again.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words comfort and hope for your daily life.

What do kids do after school, and how much TV do you watch have in common?

The Bible doesn't deal directly with school and TV of course. But it does have a lot to say about how people live together, how they keep covenant with God and each other over the long term.

The first and second of the Ten Commandments (Exod. 20:3-6) warn us that the damage caused by valuing anything above God, as well as the benefit of putting God first in our lives, affects not just us but our children far into the future. Many other passages echo this theme of the long-term effects of our behavior. I invite you to check out Luke 1:46-55, especially verse 50; Psalm 145:4, and Psalm 78:2-7.

From what we do, children learn what is of lasting value to us. Is it what we want them to learn? Are we passing on our love of hunting, reading, playing baseball, knitting, camping, cooking, making music or art, or whatever brings us deep and lasting satisfaction? Or are we saying, "I don't have anything of value to give you; watch the tube if you want?"

I'm not saying there is nothing good on television. I'm saying that when we're staring at the screen, we are not relating very fully to each other. And it is whether we share what we love when we are together, one to one and generation to generation, that will strongly influence not only what kids do after school, but ultimately our whole quality of life.

Agnes Gray School

by Marta Clements

Dates to remember for this week are Sept. 26 and 27. School pictures are being taken on Thursday, Sept. 26. Gym classes will not be held out-of-doors on that day, so children won't have to worry about messing up their "picture clothes." Friday, Sept. 27, is an early release day. Students will eat lunch at school and be dismissed at 12:30. The teachers will remain to work on Reading Benchmarks for all grade levels. We will be determining reading expectations for each grade.

News from each classroom this week finds the kindergarten children settling in and mastering school rules, learning to write their names and working on nursery rhymes. They have made a clock for "Hickory Dickory Dock" to help with number recognition and counting. They graphed their favorite candy for "Handy Dandy Jack a Spandy," had a tasting party for "Pease Porridge Hot," and sorted and graphed shoes for "Diddle Diddle Dumpling." This rhyme also led to practicing right and left feet. They are also beginning to work on learning a letter a week.

Mrs. Biggers, and all the teachers are looking for volunteers to help in the classroom and to be room mothers, or room fathers. Please contact your child's teacher if you would like to help out.

The first-graders had a fantastic time at the Oxford County Fair. They were especially excited to see that their paper quilt, which was on display, won a blue ribbon! Mrs. Mullen and the children appreciated all the volunteer help they had on that project. They are looking forward to their next field trip to a local apple orchard and learning all kinds of things about apples.

The second-graders are enthusiastic about their science unit on earthworms. They have made earthworm homes and are observing earthworm behavior and recording their movements. They are also looking at soil samples and soil components. Their author of the month for September is Dr. Suess. They love his silly rhymes and illustrations. They are working on Dr. Suess projects. They are working on problem solving in math and practicing addition facts up to 10.

The third-graders are working on choosing a class name for themselves, and will soon have a banner on display. They are enjoying their Abyssinian guinea pig who loves attention and lettuce. They have reviewed reading strategies, and are learning to pick out interesting details in stories and in their writing. The focus in math has been place value to hundreds, calendar work and addition facts. They also are working on problem solving.

Mr. Litchfield's fourth-graders are beginning the year with their Maine Studies unit, and are learning about logging and Maine's early history. Their class book is "Sign of the Beaver," an historical fiction account of Maine when it was part of Massachusetts. Fourth-graders have spelling sentences due every Wednesday, and tests are given every Friday. In science they are learning about electricity, predicting and testing to see whether objects are conductors or insulators.

Mr. Burke and I are working together with the two fifth grades. Mr. Burke is teaching social studies to both classes, and I am teaching science. All other subjects are taught within our respective classrooms. We need volunteers from both classes to help out with fund raising for our annual trip to Boston, as both classes will be taking that trip. We also plan to have both classes working on computers sending e-mail to the bulletin board, and to other classrooms. There will be lots of hard work this year, but hopefully lots of fun, too.

Andrew Cook joined the sixth-grade class this past week, and everyone is welcoming him back to West Paris. Andrew and his class are working on oceanography in science, decimals and metric measurement in math, and, as with the rest of us, daily problem solving. Their second Book Record Sheet is due on Oct. 7. They are learning about ancient Greece in social studies. Mr. Koch wants to remind his students not to forget homework each night and to prepare for tests on Fridays.

Several of us teachers have enrolled in a math course with our math curriculum specialist, Sharon LeBlond, and with Dr. Kratzer of the University of Southern Maine. We will be able to work together back in our classrooms. Also, as a staff, we will be involved in an after-school workshop to learn how to implement Conflict Resolution in our classrooms. More on this later.

These are the signs of stress in your life. The more you are experiencing, presumably the more "stressed" you are. This doesn't mean, however, that "bad" things are happening to you. What is sometimes overlooked is that "good" things also exert pressure. A promotion, a marriage, a new home demands change on your part as does divorce, loss of job, death of a pet, etc. It's the change, good or bad, that takes thought and energy. The pioneer researcher on stress, Hans Selye, talked about eustress that promotes growth and distress that is a negative challenge. Stress isn't to be escaped or avoided, it is to be managed. When you notice many signs, stress is getting the better of you and you need to address it before you become ill. I like a person who is overturned in a boat, you can swim, float, dog paddle only so long before you become exhausted and start to sink. You have heard the expression, "it's only stress" but it's becoming well-accepted in medicine that many physical illnesses are caused by or made worse by stress.

In this age of efficiency and productivity, you may have found that your daily schedule is packed from awakening till falling asleep with tasks that are commonly related to job, home, family and community needs. Only rarely do people take time for themselves as seriously as they do the time devoted to others. One model of stress management suggests a step by step approach: what stressors can be avoided altogether, what stressors can be altered in some way, and finally, what stressors do you accept just as they are? In the latter instance, what can you do to keep yourself healthy in the face of daily and on-going stress?

Because you can't quit a job because a co-worker or boss is unreasonable, sell your house because the neighbors dog barks, or make an ill family member well, the focus needs to turn to measures that will help keep your head above water even while the stressors continue.

Just as some of the stress symptoms are related to body and some to the emotional or spiritual self, you can take care of yourself in physical ways or ways that support the mind or spirit. No one needs to go on a long or expensive vacation to ease the weight of daily stress. In fact, it may be more beneficial to begin slowly: wear clothes and shoes that feel comfortable to you, take a 10-minute bath after the day's work is done, listen to your favorite music, take a walk alone or with a special friend, get a massage, take the phone off the hook for awhile, etc. The idea is not to spend a lot of time or money but rather to find ways to fill you up after you have given to others.

Help Your Heart Recipes

This recipe is intended to be part of an overall healthful eating plan. Total fat intake should be less than 30 percent of your total calories for a day — not for each food or recipe.

Roast Chicken

- | | |
|---|---------------------------------------|
| 1/4 cup white wine | 1/2 teaspoon basil or tarragon |
| 2 cup low-sodium chicken broth | 1 tablespoon acceptable vegetable oil |
| 1 4-pound roasting chicken | |
| 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, or to taste | |

Preheat oven to 350 F.
In a small bowl, combine wine and broth. Set aside.
Remove giblets and neck from chicken and save for other use, or discard. Rinse chicken and pat dry. Rub inside and out with pepper and basil or tarragon. Rub oil over skin and truss chicken. Place on a rack in a roasting pan, breast side up. Roast about 20 minutes per pound, or until done. Chicken is done when juices run clear when a thigh is pierced with a sharp skewer or when a meat thermometer inserted in a thigh registers 180 F.
Baste chicken frequently with wine and broth mixture and turn bird twice during cooking time. Remove from oven and carve. Remove skin before serving. Serves 6

Headly New Solution to Lice Problem

They're embarrassing. They're itchy. They're a real pain in the neck. And they're the most common childhood problem, except for the common cold.

But lice don't just go to children's heads. They like adults as much as kids. Between 10 and 15 million cases of head lice are reported every year. The may infect both humans and animals. And they're not just a nuisance, they can cause a lot of trouble. Head lice are not a sign of either poverty or poor hygiene.

Not to trivialize the problem, but the real difficulty with controlling head lice is not picking.

A female louse can lay 150 eggs or nits in a month. The glue she uses to attach the nits to hair is so strong, even combing is only marginally effective without an aid and is often painful. But a new product from Care Technologies (1-800-783-1919) makes nit removal less distasteful.

The Clear Total Lice Elimination System combines a lice-killing shampoo with an egg remover.

Allergies Don't Have to Blow You Away

by: The Bethel Area Health Center

'Tis the season again for sniffing and sneezing caused by allergies to things in the air -- which is nothing to snub your nose at. The most common causes of allergies are pollen, mold, dust, and animal dander.

MOLD: This is common where water tends to collect, such as shower curtains and damp basements. Mold also thrives in rotting logs, hay, mulches, commercial peat moss, compost piles, and dead leaves. Reduce mold in your home by removing house plants and frequently cleaning areas where mold builds.

POLLEN: Allergies that occur from late August to the first frost are often due to weed pollen. Shower or bathe before bedtime to wash off the pollen that may be in your hair and on your skin.

DUST: Dust contains things that cause allergies, such as dust mites, tiny creatures found in bedding, carpeting, and upholstery. Some tips: Lower the humidity in your home and dust with a damp cloth.

PET DANDER: This is bits of animal skin and hair. You can be exposed to it by touching a pet or breathing house dust containing dander. You may need to keep your pet outside.

HITTING THE ROAD—A consolidation process at Northeast Bank that began in 1993 wrapped up last week, as four operations employees moved to an office in Lewiston. "We were able to put all our people together, as opposed to three different locations," said Linda Varrell, vice president for branch administration. "We'll be better able to serve our branch network customers." She said employees who serve customers directly are all remaining in the Bethel office. Here, trucks carrying furniture to the Lewiston office wait to be loaded.

LANCE CPL. GILSON

Marine Lance Cpl. Sean M. Gilson, son of Randy W. and Kathy E. Eastman of Bryant Pond, recently returned to Morehead City, N.C. after completing a two-and-a-half-month overseas operation while assigned to the Special Purpose Marine Air Ground Task Force (SPMAGTF). Gilson was one of 700 Marines embarked on the amphibious dock transport ship USS Ponce, which left the U.S. in mid-June.

The SPMAGTF had elements that were located in five countries throughout Europe and Africa, including Operations Assured Response and Quick Response. During these operations in Monrovia, Liberia and Bangui, Central African Republic, respectively, Gilson's unit provided security for American citizens and the American embassies during recent civil hostilities.

A 1994 graduate of Telstar Regional High School, Gilson joined the Marine Corps in Aug. 1994.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE—Seven Key Bank employees from the Bethel branch recently spent an afternoon helping out in the Telstar High/Middle School Library. Their efforts were part of the bank's annual Neighbors Make a Difference Day, when employees leave work early to volunteer in the community. The library volunteers filed cards, evaluated and reorganized books, entered a bibliography of career Web sites onto the computer and recorded information needed to get ready for data conversion to an automated library. Shown here are (seated, from left), Wendy Rice and Cathy Bennett; standing, Kathy Trefethen, librarian Linda Blackman, Marjorie Osgood, Mary Dooen, John Dickson and Mary Bean.
